Necromancers are adept at the dark art of communion with the dead, this is the center of their power. Their dark art makes them naturally feared. Priests and Knights find their art blasphemous and will stop at no cost to absolve them of their sins through sacrifice. Since a Necromancer is so close to the realm of actually leave a corpse.. however more of their life force is drained upon their death than a normal mortal. Necromancers have forged a close bond with the underworld through the amount of souls they have sacrificed, and are able to summon demonic minions to aid them. These will fight and die for them and are used indiscriminately. An experienced necromancer can even raise souls from the dead, forcing their enemies to rise from the grave to obey their every command. They also have the ability to leech the soul of their enemies whilst they attack, restoring some of their own health.
